

One Penny

Will Aid a Sick Friend
Will You Spend It?

Write me a postal card to tell me who needs help. Tell me the book to send. That trifle is your part—all the rest is mine. Write it today.

I will even do this—I will mail the sick one an order—good at any drug store—for six bottles Dr. Shoop's Restorative. He may take it a month at my risk. If it succeeds, the cost is $5.50. If it fails, I will pay the druggist myself. And the sick one's mere word shall decide it.

Could I meet you I would forever convince you that I have what these sick ones need. More than that, they must have it, for most of them can never get well without it. I would overwhelm you with evidence.

But I can meet only a few, so I say to all who need help:—Try my Restorative one month at my risk. Learn by a test just what it can do. If it succeeds, you are well. If it fails, it is free. I know that no sick one can neglect an offer like that.

I fail sometimes, but not often. In rare cases, there is a cause—like cancer—which medicine cannot cure. But I have furnished my Restorative to hundreds of thousands on these terms, and 29 out of each 40 have gladly paid, because they got well. I am willing to trust the sick ones to be fair with me.

It is a remarkable remedy that can stand a test like that. It is my discovery, and I spent a lifetime on it. My Restorative is the only remedy that strengthens the inside nerves. Those nerves alone operate every vital organ of the body. When an organ is weak it means that its nerve power is weak. It is like an engine that needs more steam. To doctor the organ is useless. The weak organ will do its duty when given the power to act, and no other way can cure it.

My success comes from the fact that my remedy always restores that nerve power. My book will explain it. Please write me today who needs it.

Simply state which book is wanted and address Dr. Shoop, Box 294, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases, not chronic, are often cured by one or two bottles. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is sold by all druggists.

NELLIE S. GORE IN THIS CITY

Here, was Nellie and if I am not mistaken she was three or four years of age and a very pretty little girl. They remained with me about three weeks after Mr. Stogdill's death. Mrs. Stogdill was a remarkably brilliant woman and Mr. Stogdill was a man of fine ability and personal character. I remember that when he died we all thought his loss was irreparable. They were a charming couple.

Asked whether she could remember where in Indiana Mrs. Stogdill lived after being widowed, Mrs. Caldwell said she had forgotten on account of the long time that had elapsed.

Mrs. B. R. Widdow, Mrs. Caldwell's daughter, remembered Nellie Stogdill as a bright, winsome little girl with black hair and a very buoyant and cheerful disposition.

J. H. Allen was then on the board of the First Methodist church. He knew Mr. Stogdill very well, but he is unable to recall a memory of the family. He spoke very highly of Mr. Stogdill and says the regret of the community over his death was very profound and general.

Judge Henry C. Stone also remembered Mr. Stogdill very distinctly and like the others he retains a high estimate of his ability.

Mr. Stogdill succeeded Rev. Mr. Newley and was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Walker, who filled the unexpired term. The readers of the Eagle are familiar with the details of the Paris tragedy. Mrs. Gore was found lying in the apartments of Jean De Rydzinski in the Rue De La Paix, Paris. Half an hour before she succumbed to De Rydzinski, who is a Russian having noble relatives, and who is himself an actor at the Imperial theater at St. Petersburg. The evidence showed that Mrs. Gore was fully dressed, even to her bonnet, when the shooting took place. She had been seen going to the apartments of De Rydzinski, often, but nothing improper had ever been observed.

Thursday evening, half an hour after she entered with Rydzinski into his apartments, a revolver shot had been heard. De Rydzinski at first claimed Mrs. Gore had committed suicide, but later told conflicting stories, one to the effect that the revolver fell off a table and another to the effect that it went

ENGAGED.

Marriage is very largely an accident. In few cases do men or women set up a standard of manly or womanly excellence and choose by it. In most cases people become engaged as the result of propinquity rather than because of any deep rooted preference. And so it often happens that the wife enters upon the obligations of matrimony just as thoughtlessly as she entered on the marriage relation, because no one has warned her of the dangers she faces.

Thousands of women become invalids for lack of knowledge of themselves. It is to this large body of women that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes as a priceless boon, because it cures womanly ills.

"After my first child was born," writes Mrs. J. H. Stott, of Lawrence, Kansas, "my health was very poor for a long time, and last winter I was so bad with pain down back I could hardly move without great suffering. My husband got me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and a trial of it brought me back to my normal state. I was greatly relieved, and soon after taking the medicine I felt that I was getting better. I can't say who it is that there are so many suffering women when there is such an easy way to be cured. I know your medicine is the best in the world."

off in a scuffle for its possession. De Rydzinski is under arrest.

Mrs. Gore, whose home was in the city of Mexico, arrived in France during the latter part of August for the purpose of developing her pronounced musical talent and became a pupil of the famous composer, Moszkowski.

All the Wichita people who have been in the city of Mexico in recent years know the magnificent Gore mansion in the capital of the cactus republic. It is on the famous Paseo, the great boulevard which runs diagonally to the great rock on which stands the castle of Chapultepec, the executive mansion of Diaz. A short distance from the Alameda, the central park, this famous avenue begins, starting at a bronze statue of King Charles of Spain, said to be the finest equestrian statue in the world. Every few hundred feet are statues of Mexican nobles. Near the foot of the avenue and to the right as you go towards Chapultepec stands the Gore mansion. It is of the style of architecture which prevails in the Vanderbilt quarter of Fifth avenue, and is in great contrast to the great Spanish mansions which are built square around an inner court. The Gore mansion is flanked by a large conservatory and the park is full of heavy tropical plants. The home is pointed out to all visitors as the finest American home in the city. Mrs. Gore is going to Paris to finish her musical education, followed the vogue in the city of Mexico, which gets its styles, silks and imported dress goods from the French capital, and when a vacation is to be taken by the very rich, they always select the city on the Seine in the place of destination.

The news that Mrs. Gore as a child lived in Wichita became generally known among the pioneer Methodist families, and they very naturally took a deep interest in the dramatic events in her life and her culmination in a tragic death in a foreign country.

RICHARDS

CASE WAS UP BEFORE JUDGE HARVEY YESTERDAY
Many Witnesses Examined but Case Was Not Completed.

Yesterday the case of the State vs. Dr. C. H. Richards and wife, was tried before Judge Harvey, of the city court. The defendants were arrested last July for the maintenance and abandonment of a child they had taken to rear. A jury gave bond and the case has been continued from time to time until it was called yesterday.

On the 14th of last June a man and woman representing themselves as Dr. and Mrs. Richards came to the city from Rush, O., stating to Police Matron Mrs. Ellis Elmer Shields, that they wished to adopt a child, and asking her to assist them in finding one. Through her aid they found a strong, healthy three-month-old baby and took it with them to Rush. They represented that they had an elegant home there and that the child would receive the very best of care.

July 2, they returned to the city bringing the baby with them. It was in a dying condition; its clothing was covered with filth and its face and mouth were covered with sores, indicating that it had been burned by some acid. They asked Mrs. Shields to take the child back, but seeing its condition, she refused to do so, whereupon it was taken to the home of Mrs. Miller, where it died.

Dr. and Mrs. Richards were immediately arrested for malfeasance and abandoning this child, but owing to illness of the doctor, it has been continued a number of times.

The case was called at 9 o'clock by Judge Harvey, but owing to some misunderstanding, the witnesses for the state were not present and trial did not begin until 10:30 a. m.

The first witness for the state to the case was Dr. J. W. Shultz. He said he was called to the home of Mrs. Miller one day early in July and saw the baby which was left there by Dr. and Mrs. Richards. He also said the child was clothed in filthy garments, was frightfully emaciated and its face and mouth gave the appearance of having been burned by some acid, possibly carbolic acid.

Dr. Levi Horner testified to practically the same thing. He said he had made

HOW NEW YORK WAS SHOCKED

Over the News of Mrs. Molineux's Divorce Plans.

NO ONE SUSPECTED IT

Some of the Explanations Given of the Trouble.

(From the New York American.)
Roland H. Molineux and his wife have parted for good.
Mrs. Molineux yesterday arrived in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, where she will take up her residence preliminary to instituting proceedings in divorce against her husband.

Exactly one week from the day of Molineux's acquittal on the charge of slaying Kate J. Adams, his wife definitely announces that she will live with him no more.

Wired for verification of the report Mrs. Molineux replied:
"Information correct. Am in Sioux Falls to institute divorce proceedings. I have been martyred, and I am justified in seeking my freedom."

"BLANCHE C. MOLINEUX."
Confirmation of the news was not lacking in other quarters. It was learned at the office of former Judge Olcott, one of the lawyers who defended Molineux at the last trial, that five letters addressed to Mrs. Blanche Molineux, at No. 117 Fort Green Place, Brooklyn, the residence of her husband were returned yesterday unopened to Mr. Wolcott.

This indicates that all communication between husband and wife has been severed.
It was also learned that Mrs. Molineux had called at Mr. Wolcott's office as late as last Friday and received from him, on telephone instructions from General E. L. Molineux, $200 in cash.

She must have taken a train for the west at once.
Mr. Wolcott showed great surprise when acquainted with the news of the lady's arrival in Sioux Falls and of her intention to sue for divorce.

"I know absolutely nothing about it," he said, "and but for the proofs which you show I would be inclined to doubt the truth of the story. Our relations with the Molineuxs ended with the acquittal of Roland Molineux. Our bill has been rendered and paid, and we have ceased to represent them."

"I am nevertheless surprised to learn that Mrs. Molineux has begun this action. I had no intimation of it. I saw her at recently on last Friday, when she called to get some money that General Molineux had instructed me to pay over to her, and she said nothing about an intention to leave town or a divorce then."

"I felt absolutely convinced after the events of last Tuesday night, when she and her husband were reunited in the boys' father's home in Brooklyn, that peace had been restored all around."

"This news perhaps accounts for the return of her letters to me from the Fort Greene place house today."

General Molineux who spent the day at his paint factory in Plymouth street, Brooklyn, refused to be interviewed yesterday. His son, Roland, who yesterday began work in his father's establishment likewise refused to respond to a note that was sent to him.

Both son and father were acquainted with the nature of the news which they were asked to discuss.

Last night when the dispatch received from Mrs. Molineux was forwarded to General Molineux and his son they still refused to make statement or discuss the case in any way.

Barney Weeks and George Gordon Bates, original counsel for Molineux, today expressed their great surprise at the news, although Mr. Bates indicated by his manner that the action of Mrs. Molineux was not altogether unexpected. Among the friends and acquaintances of the Molineuxs the news created a great sensation, particularly in view of General Molineux's statement made as late as last Saturday, in which he warmly defended his daughter-in-law and asserted that she and Roland were on the best of terms and had settled down to a happy married life.

While General Molineux was uttering these sentiments Mrs. Molineux was already speeding westward to the divorce haven. And since it has been admitted that the young wife was in receipt of her sole means of subsistence from General Molineux it is highly probable that she was using the money she had received from the General through Judge Olcott to pay her expenses to Sioux Falls.

The cause of the separation is being kept a profound secret. It was generally agreed, however, that the reason, whatever it may be, dates back beyond the beginning of Molineux's second trial, and perhaps beyond the date of the reversal of the verdict of guilty by the court of appeals.

It was learned yesterday that for more than a year all of the relations between General Molineux and his son's wife were conducted through counsel. Judge Olcott was the intermediary, and into his hands various sums of money, usually $50 at a time, from which Judge Olcott furnished Mrs. Molineux her expenses weekly.

Her board at the Murray hotel was $5 a week and in addition to this Mrs. Molineux was allowed at odd times pin money and money with which to clothe her property. General Molineux refused the payment of these sums to his son's wife as a duty, and they would undoubtedly would have been kept up indefinitely had the verdict been the other way.

But from the time that Mrs. Blanche Molineux left the house at Sing Sing, where she and Mrs. Molineux the elder had gone to live while Roland was in the death chamber, until last Tuesday night, there was no personal contact between her and the Molineux family.

This statement can be made absolutely, even counsel in the case were deceived with regard to the relations between the prisoner and his wife, and were prompt to deny the oft repeated stories of an estrangement between Molineux and his wife.

Mrs. Molineux never called upon her husband at the Tombs, nor did any letters pass between them. She who had sat beside her husband throughout the first trial, never appeared at the second.

It was said that she did not call at the Tombs nor appear at the trial because her husband objected to the publicity which would thus be thrust upon her, and even Mrs. Blanche Molineux when asked about these matters, supported the statements of counsel that she was very anxious to be with her husband, but that he had sent her word to remain until the trial was at an end.

Yet, Mrs. Molineux, the mother, called upon the prisoner at least once a week while he was in the Tombs and managed to avoid publicity.

At one time, when the last trial was about half through, counsel for the defense asserted a purpose to disregard the wishes of the defendant and bring Mrs. Molineux into court, but she never appeared.

Finally, on the day that Molineux was acquitted, a week ago today, he walked out of court a free man, but instead of being met by his wife at the door of the prison, or of going at once to her side, he was driven to his father's home, and it was not until five hours later that his wife joined him.

She was practically forgotten in the excitement following his liberation. One of the attorneys thought of her at 5 o'clock and went to the Murray hotel in a cab for the purpose of taking Mrs. Molineux to her husband's side.

Mrs. Molineux showed temper. She was offended at the fact that she had been ignored for so long, and for so long after great persuasion that the lawyer induced her to accompany him to Brooklyn.

The next day the announcement was made that a complete reunion had been effected between the family and Mrs. Molineux, the younger.

Roland's mother, who had been offended, so the story goes, because her daughter-in-law had gone to the theatre while her boy was in the death chamber at Sing Sing, received Blanche back into favor, and for the first time in four years the entire family met around the family board.

Mrs. Molineux spent Tuesday night at the Fort Greene place house, and the next day she drove in a cab to the Murray Hill hotel, where she gathered together her belongings and gave up the apartment which she had occupied since the break with her husband's relatives.

She was seen to re-enter the Fort Greene place house on Wednesday, and from day to day General Molineux repeated the statements that Roland and his wife were wholly reunited and would live with him until they arranged their plans for housekeeping.

General Molineux put a climax to these statements in an interview which was published Saturday, in which he said:

"I believe my daughter-in-law to be one of the most upright and honest women that ever lived. Scandalous stories have reached my ears about her, and I have spent thousands of dollars running them down. In each case they were found to originate in people's imaginations only. One or two of them were traced to a minister who said he had heard them from his wife, and when she was confronted she acknowledged that they were no truth."

In another case a police official told me there was a picture in existence which was very damaging. He said that he had seen it. I offered him $100 in cash if he would let me see that picture, but he refused to admit that there was no such picture in existence."

"Now that the trial is over I want to publish to the world that I believe she has been one of the most bitterly persecuted women that I ever heard of. As her father-in-law I want to say that I believe her to be one of the most upright and honest women that ever lived."

The nervous strain she has been under has told on her and is a wonder that the poor girl isn't crazy. She has been battered from pillar to post and has known no peace for years."

"Now, this woman is my child, on the same footing as my boy, and I am going to look out for her."

This interview was given out on Friday afternoon. At noon on the same day Mrs. Molineux called at Judge Olcott's office and received $500 which General Molineux had directed over the telephone should be paid to her.

"Do you know why General Molineux didn't give the money to Mrs. Molineux personally, since she was living in the same house with him? Or why he didn't give it to his son for her?" Judge Olcott was asked yesterday.

"I don't know," he replied.

It must have been the same afternoon that Mrs. Molineux left for Sioux Falls. She couldn't have reached that place yesterday afternoon had she taken a train later than Friday.

Mrs. Molineux was interviewed repeatedly in the same strain prior to Friday.

Her talk in all the interviews before the acquittal was of her confusion in her husband's innocence and of his ultimate vindication, and the happiness that she looked forward to in his company after he was free. And when the verdict of "Not Guilty" was finally rendered, her talk was all of her joy over the victory and of her happiness at their reunion.

To an interviewer last Wednesday, the day after the verdict, when she was pressed to leave the Murray Hill hotel finally to take up her home with her husband's people, she said concerning the reported estrangement:

"It is undoubtedly true that there was an estrangement, but not in any sense a quarrel. I am really too happy to talk too happy to think about these things. Perhaps, however, the explanation is best given in these words: I have a strong impulse and I do not hesitate to show it. I cannot act a lie. I cannot conceal my likes or dislikes. My face is a telltale and I am at no pains to conceal my sentiment about persons and things. I wish you to understand that I had no difference with the dear General, who tried in all ways to make me as comfortable while I have been living at this hotel."

"But while I have been estranged from Mrs. Molineux, Dr. there has been nothing in the nature of ill-feeling or resentment. In the face of our joy all these things are swept away, and the fact that I am

STOP THAT COUGH!

Cold Leads to Catarrh—Catarrh Leads to Consumption.

A Beautiful Girl's Experience.

MISS ALMA LILLIA.

Miss Alma Lillia, 506 25th street, Rock Island, Ill., says:

"I am a firm friend to Peruna, for it cured me in two days of a cough which had been annoying me for three weeks, and which had developed a serious catarrhal affection of the throat and lungs."

"I had a number of colds during the year and each left me with a little more catarrh, then this bad cough was the worst. I took cough medicines until I sickened at the sight of them. But Peruna cured me in such quick time that I am its firm friend. Four weeks' constant use of it got the catarrh entirely out of my system."

"It deserves all the praise bestowed upon it."—Alma Lillia.

NINE CASES of consumption out of ten occur in this way:

A person catches a cold. The cold is not properly cured, and they quickly catch another one. This cold is diffused with by no treatment, or some treatment that is ineffectual, and the cold continues.

Then they catch another cold and begin to cough. Then they take cough syrups, but they do no good.

By and by they get tired of taking medicine and give up in despair. Their cold continues, and their cough grows worse. Then they apply to a doctor, only to discover that they are in the first stages of consumption.

Miss Lillia, of Illinois, started out exactly in this way. Fortunately, she took a course of Peruna before it was too late. She had caught several colds, then a cough developed. She took all sorts of cough medicines until, as she puts it, "I sickened at the sight of them."

In four weeks Peruna had cured her of her catarrh, and her system was entirely rid of it.

This is what Peruna is doing all the while. Not a day, and probably not an hour, passes but some one has a similar experience with Peruna.

The first step toward consumption is catching cold. The next step is a failure to cure it promptly. The third step is the development of catarrh, which gradually becomes chronic. The fourth step, the catarrh begins to spread from the head to the throat. The fifth step, the catarrh spreads to the bronchial tubes and lungs. It then becomes consumption in its first stage.

At any time during the progress of the catarrh, from the first onset of the cold to its final settlement in the lungs, Peruna can be relied upon to stop the disease. It cures entirely. Even after consumption has become thoroughly developed, many cases have been found in Peruna a permanent cure. After they have been given up by physicians to the effect of consumption, Peruna has cured them. We have hundreds of testimonials that declare these facts in the most enthusiastic language.

U. S. Senator John M. Thurston, from Nebraska, writes the following letter:

Washington, D. C., April 6, 1902.
"I have used Peruna at various times during the past year or two with most satisfactory results."

"It entirely relieved me from an irritating cough—the result of excessive effort in the presidential campaign, and I am a firm believer in its efficacy in any such trouble."—John M. Thurston.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

at this minute on my way to Fort Green place, and that I am going to stay there with my husband. He is accepted as evidence that I am in love."

Two days after uttering these sentiments Mrs. Molineux boarded a train for Sioux Falls to institute divorce proceedings against her husband.

Other interviews which Mrs. Molineux gave out while her husband was still confined in the Tombs further complex the mystery.

On an interview which she gave on October 6, she said:

"Think of the whole world transformed."

At a great blinding eye which pierces to one's innermost heart. For four years I have borne this. At times I have been brave, all others painfully watched, and yet in my heart all the time was been the knowledge that this is my cross and that I must bear it for the sake of those I love."

"I know he will be freed. My love for him tells me that and the memory of his law for me."

"Oh, the falsehoods they have told about me. Heaven only knows the ingenious cruelty of the stories. Yet I have borne them for the good of herself and child."
